

Heading

Travis A. Wittwer

Mr. Wittwer

English 9-3

1 April 2011

Lastname: VIEW > Header and Footer > type in lastname > move to the right side by clicking this button

Wittwer 1

Page number: INSERT > Page Numbers > top of page > right

Social Networking Sites: Losing Sight of How to Socialize

Clever title. Clearly connected to topic. Centered title

Andrew is a typical teenager, and like many teenagers today, he wants the style, seems to always have headphones in, and does an average job in school. What also makes

Andrew typical is what he does when he is not at school. Most parents do not know that their teenager is engaged in the activity. It is a tragic scene. Over 45 million Indentation is created by using the TAB button.

user's room is different, but they all have a few things in common corner; no natural light because the curtains are drawn to hide the sadness inside; energy drinks litter the floor; and a stale, musty odor that permeates the room. At the center of this mess is a computer. These teenagers are addicted to what is on their computer. Addicted to social networking sites. Addicted. Social networking sites have been around for over a decade, used mostly by computer programmers, but have not gained a mainstream following until the advent of Myspace, and more recently, Facebook and Twitter. By 2009, Facebook is so ubiquitous that it is noun and verb. Nearly 72 % of the population has at least one social network profile online (Moerdyck). A social network is any web site where users create an online profile and connect with other users via text, photos, or video.

Last name to show from which article the quote comes.

The whole document is double spaced. No extra lines are added between paragraphs or title.

Centered, no extra lines for spacing

Works Cited

"Social Networking Sites." Points of View Charts & Graphs: Internet (2010): 1. Points of View Reference Center. EBSCO. Web. 15 Mar. 2011.

Moerdyck, John. "Social Networking Sites: An Overview." Points of View: Social Networking Sites (2009): 1. Points of View Reference Center. EBSCO. Web. 15 Mar. 2011.

Whittaker, Anne, and Geraldine Wagner. "Point: Social Networking Websites Provide a Healthy Way to Improve Friendships." Points of View: Social Networking Sites (2009): 2. Points of View Reference Center. EBSCO. Web. 15 Mar. 2011.

Hanging indent for citation. Citations are also double spaced.

Citations have a specific format. Please check to make sure your citation matches the format for that specific media.

One inch margins: FILE > Page Set Up > 1.0